

Gordie McCarty:

I was born in Eugene Oregon and moved to Seattle Washington when I was 3 years old. My family lived in and around the greater Seattle area. My parents had several rental houses, 4-plex, and a small strip mall. At a young age, I took on the role as handyman for the properties. Through high school and Junior college I worked in construction to pay the bills. I went to a Pac-10 college named Washington State University, where I graduated in 1990 with a BA degree in Business administration with emphasis in Real Estate investment. After college I worked for a mortgage broker and learned about the financing world. I was still drawn to the construction field and went to work as an estimator and business development person from 1992 until 1998. I was able to increase sales and stream line some operations to help out with the success of the companies. In 1998 I partnered up with the Parsons Bros. (who I was working for at the time) because they saw my drive and determination. We started up the California Corporation to build retaining walls in Sacramento and Northern California and have had great success building a lucrative company to where it is today. I am still actively working as the President of the California Corporation which has given me the opportunity to understand corporations, LLC, and partnerships. During all of this time my wife of 15years and I have always invested in Real Estate by having a rental house, flip property, commercial property and have never stopped educating ourselves about the real estate market. Currently I have several companies that are buying and selling real estate.
